THERE'S A MAP FOR THAT.

POLITICAL SCIENCE

Ever wonder how you can get more involved with your major and change the world at the same time? Use the guide on the back of this map to learn how to connect with and engage in social innovation in your own major.

FIELD OVERVIEW

Whether it's academic research that shows new ways to change society or lobbying for innovation initiatives or regulations, political science is a great starting place to learn how to change the world for the better.

MODEL IN THE FIELD

Steven Clift

Steven Clift's studies in Public Affairs led him to lament the lack of civic activism in the USA and around the world. As voter turn-out and participation in local political processes decreased worldwide, Clift determined to change the antiquated system in order to serve 21st century citizens. By creating E-Democracy.org, he provided a formal online substitute or supplement to traditional town-hall style meetings. Users must use their legal names, may only post 2x per day, and are subject to moderators who keep the discussion relevant and moving. Clift hopes to further improve the website to provide all citizens with a central online location to intelligently exchange ideas and form plans for action.
