ACADEMIC EXPERIENCE

Associate Professor of Entrepreneurship and Farr Research Fellow
Department of Management, Marriott School of Business, Brigham Young University, 2007 – present

Assistant Professor of Strategy and Alumni Fellow
Department of Organizational Leadership and Strategy, Marriott School, Brigham Young University, 2000 – 2007

Assistant Professor of Strategy
Department of Business Administration, University of Illinois at Urbana-Champaign, 1996 – 2000

Post-Doctoral Research Fellow
Institute of Management, Innovation, and Organization, Haas School of Business, University of California, Berkeley, 1996

EDUCATION

Ph.D. University of California, Berkeley, 1995
Dissertation Title: “Characterizing the Learning Curve: Determinants of Learning by Doing in Semiconductor Manufacturing”

M.S. Brigham Young University, 1988

B.S. Brigham Young University, magna cum laude, 1987

RESEARCH INTERESTS

I study innovation as a learning process to resolve uncertainty and solve customer problems. In particular, I study the unknown and unmet needs of customers, how innovators find them, how they innovate to solve them, and how they compete with rivals once they enter. I address this process of innovating through learning through the lenses of learning curves, disruptive innovation, the social value of innovation, cognition in innovation, entry timing, competition, and trust as learning through repeated interaction.
