

Healthcare Leadership Minor

Fall 2026 Incoming Students

BYU MARRIOTT
SCHOOL OF BUSINESS

What can I do with a minor in healthcare leadership?

Problem-solve and improve. Healthcare leaders apply functional specialties to solve challenges specific to the healthcare industry and advance impactful change in the global healthcare system.

Work in a healthcare-related setting. If you are interested in working in healthcare sectors such as medical technology, healthcare consulting, insurance, hospital management, or pharmaceuticals, this minor may be for you. The minor is designed to prepare students to be compassionate leaders in the healthcare industry.

What will I learn?

Navigate the complexities of the healthcare industry. You'll receive a broad overview of the industry and the foundational knowledge for a successful career in healthcare. You'll learn to apply practical healthcare-industry-related skills, articulate important industry-specific issues, and create a professional network with other healthcare leaders.

How can I use the minor to enhance my BYU degree?

Apply these skills to your area of study. Acquiring healthcare leadership skills and applying them through experiential learning will teach you to think critically about problems in this intricate and essential industry and prepare you to create positive change. The curriculum adds value to the technical knowledge gained from your major and allows you to select electives that align with your interests and career goals.
